

RISKS AND MITIGATION STRATEGIES ASSOCIATED WITH FEMALE REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH

In a report by the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA), approximately 62% of veterinarians are female. Based on current veterinary school enrollment, this percentage is expected to rise. Additionally, the National Association of Veterinary Technicians in America (NAVTA) reports that more than 90% of technicians are female.

Join us for the 2019 One Health in the 406 Conference! Attendees will learn about zoonotic diseases impacting female reproductive health, including preventative measures and how to improve diagnostic capabilities.

WHO

Veterinarians, physicians, public health professionals, laboratory personnel, veterinary technicians, nurses, epidemiologists

WHEN

Wednesday, November 6th, 2019
9am- 4pm

WHERE

MSU Strand Union, Room 235
751 Grant Street Bozeman, MT

HOW

Free online registration at:

<https://www.signupgenius.com/go/30E0A48ACA72AA3FC1-onehealth>

Please contact Dr. Anna Forseth with questions:
406-444-2939, anna.forseth@mt.gov

Presenters include:

Dept. of Livestock

Dept. Public Health and Human Services

National Pork Board

South Dakota State
Public Health

United States Dept. of Agriculture

